“THIS LITTLE
ENGINE:
MY TRAIN COLOR
BOOK”

(Sung to the tune of: “This Old Man”)

Miles

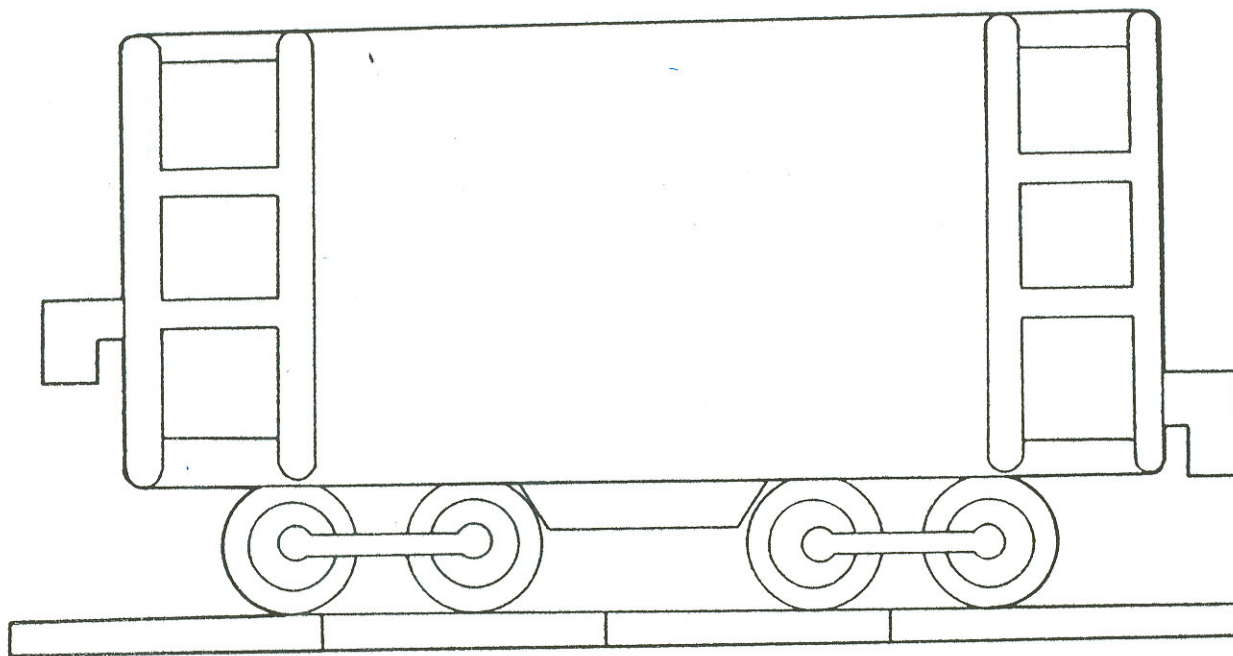

This little engine,
It is black.
It goes chugging down the track,
With a chug-chug, toot-toot,
Hear the whistle blow,
This little train goes chugging home.

This little car,
It is blue;
It goes chugging right by you.
With a chug, chug, toot-toot,
Hear the whistle blow.
This little train goes chugging home.

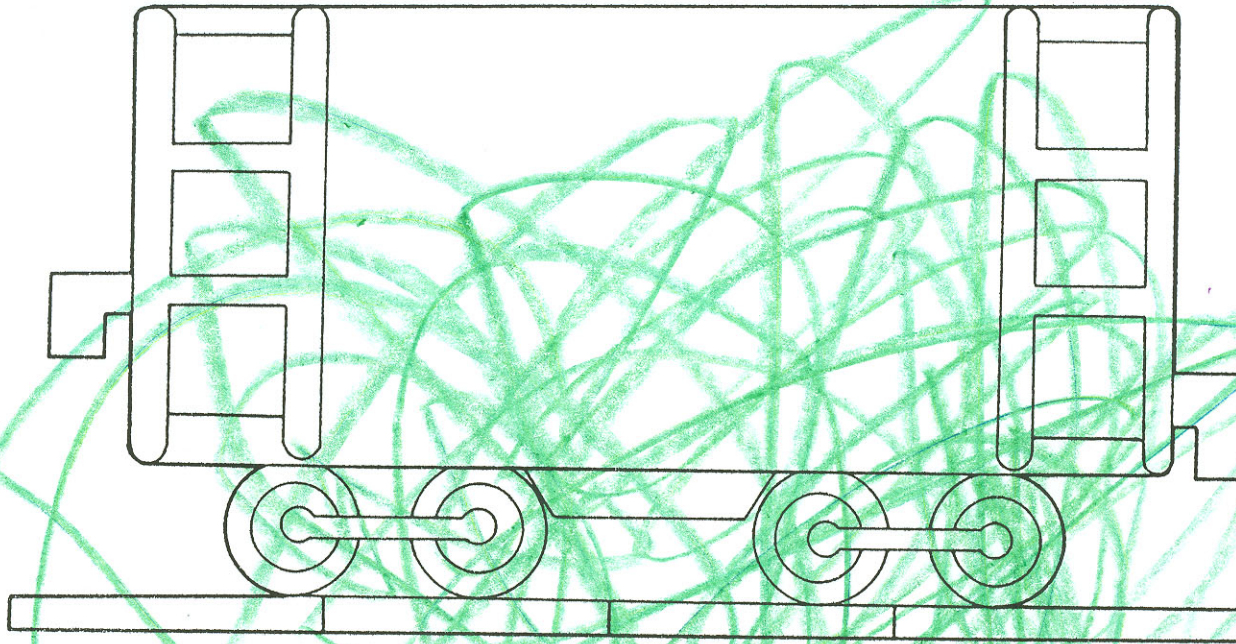

This little car,
It is brown;
It goes chugging all about town.
With a chug, chug, toot-toot,
Hear the whistle blow.
This little train goes chugging home.

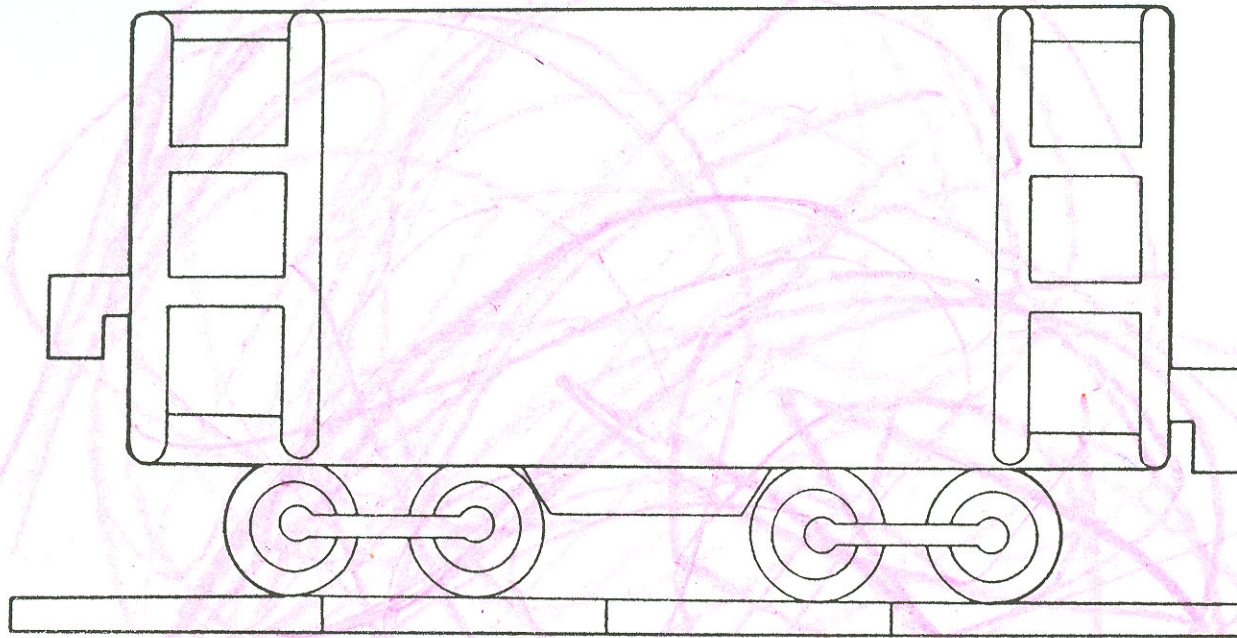

This little car,
It is white.
It goes chugging out of sight,
With a chug-chug, toot-toot,
Hear the whistle blow,
This little train goes chugging home.

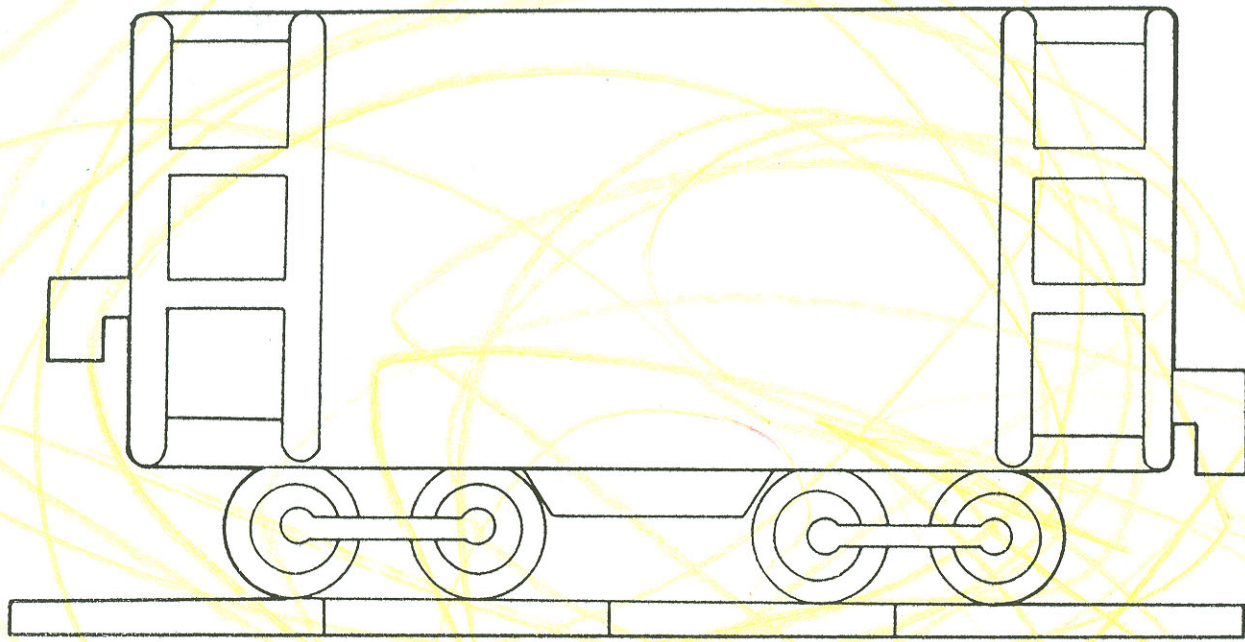

This little car,
It is purple.
It goes chugging, carrying people,
With a chug-chug, toot-toot,
Hear the whistle blow,
This little train goes chugging home.

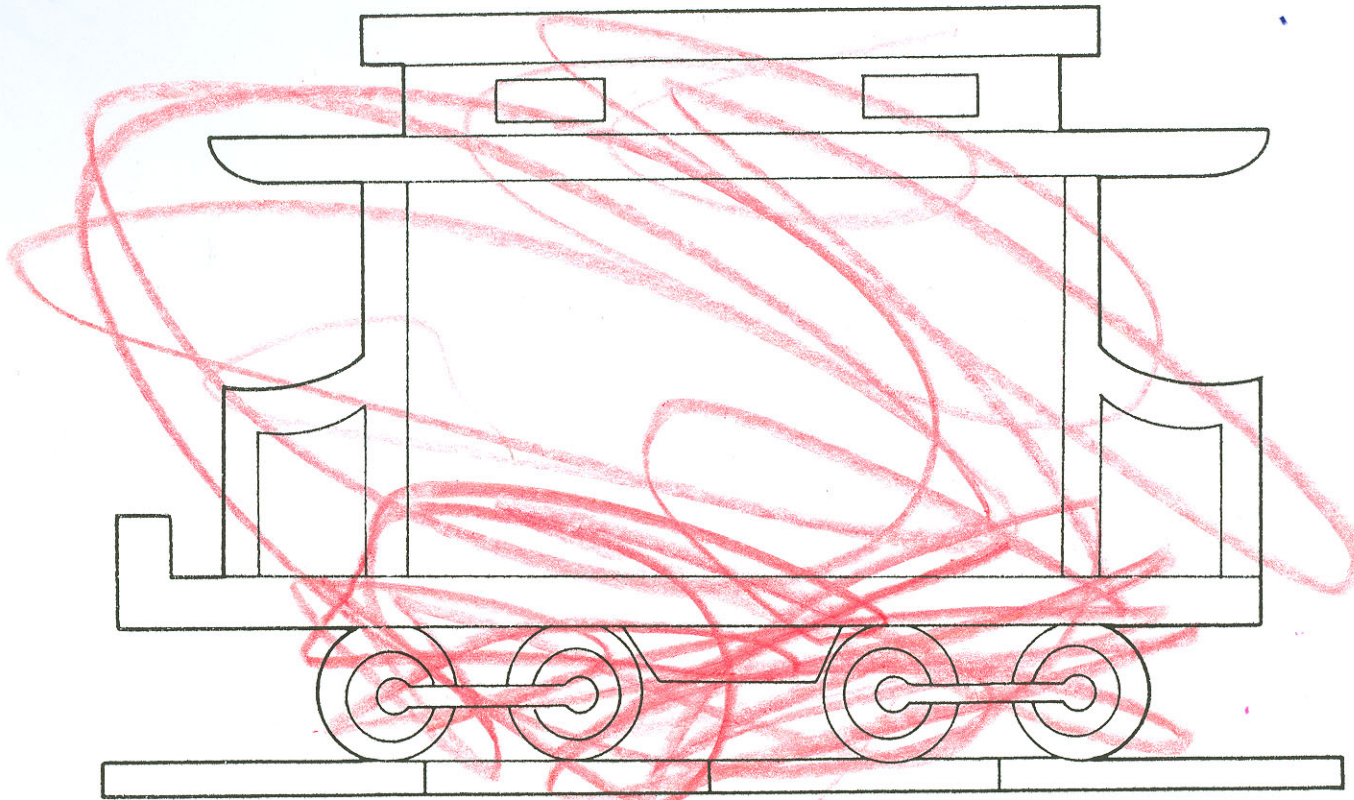

This little car,
It is green.
It goes chugging, sounds quite mean,
With a chug-chug, toot-toot,
Hear the whistle blow,
This little train goes chugging home.

This little car,
It is pink;
It goes chugging quick as a wink.
With a chug, chug, toot-toot,
Hear the whistle blow.
This little train goes chugging home.

This little car,
It is yellow;
It goes chugging, whistling hello.
With a chug, chug, toot-toot,
Hear the whistle blow.
This little train goes chugging home.

This caboose,
It is red.
It goes chugging off to bed,
With a chug-chug, toot-toot,
Hear the whistle blow,
This little train goes chugging home.
